

The voice of blind and partially sighted people in Europe

European Blind Union

Press release

Paris, 08/03/2018

In a world where an estimated two-thirds of blind people are women, EBU is commemorating this year's International Women's Day on March 8 with the release of a new video.

Eleanor Roosevelt once said, “The future belongs to those who believe in the beauty of their dreams.”

Women with visual impairments can be anything they dream they can be!!! They build their future based on their dreams. They have the vision, the determination and the desire to follow long roads of hard work to rise to the top.

“The roads that lead to the top: a video on blind and partially sighted women’s leadership” is a short video portraying the stories of ten women who are blind or partially sighted and traces the paths they followed towards pursuing their dreams. These ten women present their achievements, recall the barriers and challenges that impeded their rise, share the strategies they deployed in order to reach their full leadership potential and send out some inspiring words that might empower and guide forward other blind and partially sighted women towards that journey to the top.

The video is supported under the Rights, Equality and Citizenship programme 2014-2020 of the European Commission.
